

The Intelligencer.

THE Pittsburgh Post says that the price of large lumber has advanced from $18 to $35 per thousand owing to the great destruction of barges in the Monongahela and Ohio rivers by the ice gorge of a few weeks ago.

SUPPOSED CASE OF DROWNING.—Mr. Potts, of Hannibal, Ohio, writes on Saturday last that on the day previous a stranger came down the river in a skiff to a point about a mile above that place, and was last seen at three o'clock in the afternoon. In the course of half an hour afterward a hat was found and also a floating skiff. The letters "Y. E." were branded on the oars. The skiff is now in Mr. Potts' possession, at Hannibal, to whom all inquiries can be addressed. The skiff also has a chain fastened to the stern seat.

MR. W. K. LINDSEY, who, of Davenport, Iowa, are in the city, stopping a few days with old friends. They were old-time residents of Wheeling a quarter of a century ago. Mr. Lindsey was a jeweler, and worked for the late John Bishop when he was in that business. He, too, like Mr. Bishop, had a stroke of paralysis, and is very much crippled in consequence. The father of Mrs. Lindsey was one of the pioneers in the glass business in Wheeling half a century ago.

THE Life Insurance Business. The overhauling which this business is receiving in New York, at the hands of officers of the law and also from the daily press, is developing facts, one by one, well calculated to make people look narrowly into companies in which they insure their lives. For instance, the investigations referred to are revealing a huge barometer on the business in the way of exorbitant salaries paid to fancy officials. Take the case of the Equitable Life; the following pay-roll was disclosed to the astonished gaze of the public:

President	$17,500
Vice-President	20,000
Secretary	20,000
Assistant Secretary	10,000
Assistant Secretary	10,000
Assistant Secretary	10,000
Assistant Secretary	10,000
Sup. Bond and Mortgage Department	10,000
Twenty-five clerks	12,500
Attorneys	25,000
Medical examinations	25,000
Cashiers	25,000

The President of the gorgeous concern, Mr. H. B. Hyde, began his work in 1850 on a salary of $1,000. In 1863 he got $5,000; in 1864, with his perquisites, he skinned the public out of $21,199; and thereafter it annually increased until in 1874 it reached the glorious aggregate of $75,000, which was maintained until 1875, when the company, owing him at that time nearly $64,000, changed his income to the small and leggerly pittance of $37,000 per annum, which he is now and has been receiving since that time. But he wrung himself in as the "Agent" of the Mutual Life, for which he received the annual dole of $20,000, making his salary $57,000. In this way Hyde took the hide and tallow out of the policy holders.

There is another point in regard to life insurance that is provoking adverse comment just at this time. It is the fact that several holders of life insurance policies, who wish to give them up to the companies, are rather disgusted at learning the cash surrender values offered by what are considered the best organizations. To one man, who has made payments on a full life policy for $1,000 for 20 years, a very well-known company offers only $150, and to another, who has made ten payments on a full life policy for $5,000, $200. Yet another, who has kept up a $5,000 policy in a leading New York company for 10 years, paying two-thirds of the premiums in cash and one-third in notes, can only get his notes back and $65 in cash.

A Blue View of Business. The Springfield (Mass.) Republican of Friday last takes a rather gloomy view of the business situation, as follows: There is almost a paralysis in trade investments, and to some extent in commerce, and a general fall in prices all around. It seems to be mainly a reaction from the stimulus imparted by the expectation of war in Europe, now apparently hopeless. There is, indeed, an apprehension of lower depths and greater suffering before we emerge into good times again. Cotton is lower, the sale of cotton goods is at a standstill, and breadstuffs and provisions are either falling or threatened with a decline. There is also a new crop of failures, some of them quite heavy, and scattered pretty uniformly throughout the country. The Montreal banks are freshly squeezed by a fall of the city railway stock from 250 to 72 on the discovery of a false and fraudulent management; two banks losing over $200,000 and another quarter of a million. The great coal sale of a auction brought better prices than was expected, though from 10 to 30 cents less than the February sale, the range being from $2.70 to $3.20 per ton. Gold has kept below 105 all the week; the free credit of American railroads securities in Europe has added to the foreign demand for our 4 1/2 per cent bonds; and silver has again fallen about 54 pence per ounce at London, or to near 10 per cent below gold. The stock market continues dull and prices very low, and on the whole the present condition and outlook of business and financial affairs is not very cheering.

We had the pleasure of seeing our old friend Governor Jacob in town on Monday last. We have not seen the Governor since he commenced his second term of office, but notice he looks a little older, though he appears in remarkable good health and weight for one who has had such a fierce fight with Public Printers, Penitentiary Superintendents, Boards of Public Works and dishonest Auditors and Treasurers. Mr. Jacob made a good report of the best interests of the people. He informed us that he had been recently located at Wheeling—Key City Echo.

Marine Intelligence. NEW YORK, March 24.—Arrived—City of Chester, Liverpool. LONDON, March 24.—The steamers Algeria, from New York, and Hecla, from Boston, arrived out. NEW YORK, March 24.—The steamers Adriatic, from Liverpool, and Daniel Steinhilber, from Antwerp, have arrived. LONDON, March 25.—The steamers Germania and Herder arrived out.

BY TELEGRAPH.

ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORT.

TO THE DAILY INTELLIGENCER.

Great University Boat Race.

The Struggle Ends in a Dead Heat.

The Grandest Oar Match on Record.

The Turks Again at Their Murderous Work.

The Tweed Ring Disgorge Its Plunder.

The Boss is Tired of Law Suits.

Prefers Liberty to Ill Gotten Gains.

Key Hall Skips the Country.

What an Old Scout Says About the Mountain Meadow Massacre.

Plunder the Chief Incentive.

WASHINGTON.

Vice President Wheeler Still Undecided.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—All reports to the contrary notwithstanding, Vice President Wheeler has not yet agreed to serve on the Louisiana Commission. The President is waiting for his final decision. He agrees to serve, he will be consulted as to other persons to be invited to act with him.

PERSONAL.

Senator Morton started for home to-night.

Mr. Arthur Sten, of Cincinnati, who has been visiting friends at the White House, left for home this morning.

GENERAL GRANT.

started this evening for Cincinnati. He will visit his birth-place, in Brown county, after spending a few days in Cincinnati, after which he will go to St. Louis. Mrs. Grant accompanies him.

CABINET MEETING.

The Cabinet did nothing at their meeting to-day, except to discuss, in an informal way, the Southern situation.

SENATOR HOWE URGED FOR THE SUPREME BENCH.

The friends of Senator Howe, of Wisconsin, are very active in pushing him for the Supreme Bench. He is now in the White House, left for home this morning.

THE WORK OF THE CABINET YESTERDAY.

The Cabinet is in special session to-day, considering the probable membership of the Louisiana Commission, and determining certain foreign appointments.

The session lasted about two hours, and was mainly devoted to a discussion of the rules and regulations for the government of civil service throughout the country. Such progress was made as to warrant the belief that they will be ready for promulgation early next week.

THE PRESIDENT TO-DAY APPOINTED JOSEPH C. HARRINGTON, to be Surveyor of Customs of the port of Evansville, Indiana.

GOVERNOR CHAMBERLAIN RESPONDS IN PERSON.

A telegram has been received from Governor Chamberlain saying he will be in Washington Tuesday, in compliance with the President's invitation.

EX-PRESIDENT GRANT.

left Washington to-night for Cincinnati, where he will remain four or five days, going thence to Chicago, Galena and St. Louis. Returning home, he will stop at Harrisburg, to enjoy the trout fishing in that vicinity, and then proceed to Philadelphia, at which point, about the 10th of May, he will take passage for Europe with members of his family. Since his term of office expired many persons have called on him to seek his influence in their behalf with the new Administration, but they did not secure it.

CONDITION OF AFFAIRS IN CUBA.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—A telegram from Havana has been received, stating that Gen. Martinez, Compa Commander of the Spanish forces, has just addressed the following dispatch to his Government, regarding the military situation in Cuba: "I have placed in the most suitable positions the 17 battalions; 15 squadrons of cavalry, and the five bodies of irregular troops that remain in the Territory of Ciego de Avila, for the purpose of maintaining order and preventing incendiarism and other isolated acts. There are also stationed 9 battalions with 9 pieces of artillery to guard the Trocha. The remainder of the forces will advance to-day toward the eastern part of the island in order to clear it from the roving bands of insurgents. Since I have commanded the army the losses of the enemy have been 700 dead, 299 wounded and 609 prisoners. Besides these, 1,631 insurgents and 3,234 women from the insurgent camps have surrendered themselves or been captured by our troops on the island. Our loss during this period consists of 194 dead, 472 wounded, and 10 missing or prisoners."

HON. JOHN Q. SMITH.

Hon. John Q. Smith, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, says there is no truth in the report that the President says he has offered him the appointment of Commissioner of Agriculture.

RETIRED FROM PUBLIC SERVICE.

Judge Gorham, Assistant Secretary of the Interior, expresses his intention of retiring from public service about the first of April. It is understood that the designation of a successor rests with Secretary Schurz, and that selection has not yet been made.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—The President stated to-night that there was no information regarding the Louisiana Commission that could properly be made public.

There is much conversation here about the written pledges that have been given by President Hayes' close friends and advisors, during the progress of the election, that the President would not make any appointments to the Louisiana Commission. The following are the facts: when the Illinois Legislature was at its annual session, several Democratic Senators, among

LOUISIANA AFFAIRS.

Times' Interview with a Prominent Conservative.—President Hayes Alleged to have Pledged Himself to a Virtual Recognition of the Nicholls and Hampton Governments Before the Decision of the Electoral Commission.

NEW ORLEANS, March 24.—The Times publishes an interview with a prominent Conservative, who is supposed to know not only the sentiments of the President and his Cabinet with regard to Louisiana, but also to be in the confidence of the President. The interview is in answer to a question, he said: "Of course I do not know positively the reason which determined the Cabinet upon sending a Commission, but I think I can give a very close guess. For a long time I have been in the confidence of the President in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the South. His idea was that some policy ought to be adopted which would bring to the support of the Republican party the native white conservative people of the South, and which would be such a pledge to the South as would induce them to support the Republican party in matters relating to the